"Just don't you stray from here," the driving machine warns. He tugs on the bill of his green cap, the way. "You can't be soft with people like this," Borftein said bluntly. "Give them a yard, and they'll hate you because they want a mile. Give them nothing and clamp down hard, and later on they'll love you for giving them an inch. I've seen it all before." "So are you," Colman insisted. "Chironian genes were dealt from the same deck as all the rest. So the codes were turned into electronics for a while, and then back into DNA. So what? A book that gets stored in the databank is still the same book when it comes out." Fallows left the monitor room, crossed the floor of the Drive Control Subcenter, and exited through sliding double doors into a brightly lit corridor. An elevator took him up two levels to another corridor, and minutes later he was being shown into an office that opened onto one side of the Engineering Command Deck. Inside, Leighton Merrick, the Assistant Deputy Director of Engineering, was contemplating something on one of the reference screens built into the panel angled across the left corner of the desk at which he was sitting. "I still don't like it," Borftein grumbled to Kalens after the meeting was over. "The way I see it, what we're trying to do is provoke an official acknowledgment from these bloody Chironians that we exist at all. If I had my way, I'd soon show them whether we exist or not." "Maybe not so hard if you're honest with yourself." Noah had been so taken with her body and her Leilani to be convinced against her will that they were mother and daughter. Stern allowed a few seconds for her admission to settle. "Because they would become jailers of the prison that Howard is turning that world into. You are here because you know that I would take the world which he thought would give itself to him, because I represent the strength that he does not, and with me you could survive." Celia looked up again, but Stern's eyes had taken on a faraway light. "Chiron has made fools of the weak, who deluded themselves that it would play by their civilized rules, and now that the weak have fallen, the way is left clear for those who understand that nothing imposes Earth's rules here. It is the strong who will survive, and survival knows nothing of scruples." "Gone forward to the outer lock." "None of your goddamn business." "Been having a nice chat, have you?" Sirocco asked. "Well, yes, actually, I suppose, sir. How did you know?" Sirocco waved at the corridor behind him. "Because it's happening everywhere else, that's how. Carson's talking football, and Maddock is telling some kids about what it was like growing up on the Mayflower II." He sighed but didn't sound too ruffled about it. "If you can't beat 'era, then join 'era, eh, Driscoll... for an hour or so, anyway. And besides, they want to show Colman something in the observatory upstairs. I don't understand what the hell they're talking about." Of course, Swley, Stanislaw, Driscoll, and Carson had to be there. There was no way of backing out; Swley had spotted him entering even before Colman had noticed the four uniforms in the corner. "Small world, chief," Driscoll. She had a friend called Veronica, who lived alone in a studio apartment in the Baltimore module and was very understanding. Veronica could always be relied upon to move out for an evening on short notice, and Colman had wondered at times if she really existed. Acquiring exclusive access to a studio wouldn't have been all that difficult for a VIP'S wife, even with the accommodation limitations of the Mayflower H. She had never told him whether or not he was the only one, and he hadn't asked. It was that kind of a relationship. No rational person would suppose that a ten-year-old boy would roam the interstate, waiting for a door to be ajar. He opens it wider. With the flashlight beam, he shops for clothes. Windchaser. Having found the grisly souvenirs, they have made a citizens' arrest of the geriatric serial. hundred yards to the west. Hurrying, he has covered less than half that distance when he hears the dog. As Geneva rose from the table, Micky said, "Aunt Gen, sit down. This isn't about pie." only the previous evening, over dinner. . . . Jarvis and Chazure caught each other's eye. After a moment, Jarvis breathed a sigh of relief. Chazure returned a quick grin and went back into the command post to lean over the companel. "Lieutenant," Oordsen demanded angrily from the screen. "Where is Major Lesley? I ordered-" Chazure cut him off with a flip of a switch and at the same time closed a speech circuit to the loudspeakers commanding the lock area. "Okay, you guys, we're standing down," he said into the microphone stern projecting from the panel. "Get in here as quick as you can. We've got trouble coming up a feeder ramp on the other side." The farmhouse is silent, and the finger-filtered beam of the flashlight reveals no one in the upstairs hall. Geneva's voice wavered on God and broke on fool: "Oh, God, what a blind stupid worthless fool I. The only light came from one of the lamps on the nightstands that flanked the lone bed. Laura didn't. Bernard relaxed back in his chair and met Merrick's outraged countenance with a calm stare. "Nobody's going to shut that complex down, and you know it," he said. "Save the propaganda. I've helped get the ship here safely, and there are plenty of juniors who deserve a step up. I've done my job. I'm quitting." ahead was the room that her mother shared with Preston. The chopper might not be aloft yet, just getting up to power while the troops reboard. Here came that unsettling shift in the girl's eyes, like a sudden muddy tide washing through clean water, because too much in life was exactly what it seemed to be: dull, insipid, juvenile, and immature. Like her. Perhaps he had been hasty, and maybe just a little naive, when he and Eve had talked with Lechat, he admitted to himself. He still believed, as he had believed then, that the Terrans would melt quietly into the Chironian scheme in their own time if they were left alone to do so, but it was becoming apparent that not everybody was going to let them alone. He still couldn't see permanent Separatism as the answer either, but for the immediate future he would feel more comfortable at seeing somebody with a level-headed grasp of the situation in control-such as Lechat. On reflection, Pernak regretted his response to Lechat's plea for support. But it was far from too late for him to be able to change that. He didn't know exactly what he could do to help, but he was getting to know many Chironians and to understand a lot about their ways. Surely that knowledge could be put to some useful purpose. "Stop," Micky said, dismayed to hear the word come out with a harsh edge. Then more softly: "Just. agitated fans at a soccer match or like music-mad celebrity-besotted attendees at a rock concert, but. CHAPTER TWENTY-FIVE. of derring-do. She raised her head and at last made eye contact. "Peace, and God knows you. Old Sinsemilla was a devoted practitioner of aromatherapy and a believer in purging toxins through. thought that Burt Hooper was simply rude. "I'd help you if I could." Most Terrans had no doubts that the Chironians would take no notice whatsoever, but they couldn't see Kalens enforcing the threat. It had to be a bluff-a final, desperate gamble by a clique who thought they could sleep forever, trying to hold together the last few fragments of a dream that was dissolving in the light of the new dawn. "He should have learned about evolution," Jerry Pernak commented to Eve as they listened to the news over breakfast. "The mammals are here, and he thinks he can legislate them back to dinosaurs." and press charges against the congressman?"
