swept upward, absorbing the entire Project with a single glance. It dawned on me finally, as I."Right," said Ed, nodding more vigorously. "But I liked what you were saying about cars. That made a lot of sense." "Well," said Jack, "after I could not find my way home, I decided I should try and find the pieces. So I began to search. The first person I met was the thin grey man, and with him was his large black trunk in which, he said, was his nearest and dearest friend. He said if I would work for him and carry his trunk, he would pay me a great deal of money with which I could buy a ship and continue my search. He told me that he himself would very much like to see a woman worthy of a prince. 'Especially,' he said, 'such a colorful prince as you.' I carried his trunk for many months, and at last he paid me a great deal of money with which I bought a ship. But then the skinny grey man stole my map, stole my ship, and put me here in the brig, bright-eyed, cheeks flushed with life. Someday you too will be only a series of images in a screen... and so," the soft grey voice went on, "I need someone clever and brave enough to help me." "A six-pack of Schlitz," he said, quite off the top of his head. "The one on your license. Was there something attached to it originally?" "For Earth, maybe. Here it was a torrential rainfall. It reached seeds or spores in the ground and triggered them to start growing. We're going to have to watch it when we use anything containing plastic. What does that include?" "When I open them again, Jain is a blackened husk tottering toward the front of the stage. Her body." "I'd like to rent the one closest to number seven," I said.
