She was beautiful in movement, back against the immense trunk of the oak, and stared into the forest for a while. It was late. The coppers weren't decently in a bag, even. Irioth had to hold out his hand, and the cattleman laid out six copper pennies in it, one by one. "Now then! That's fair and square!" he said, expansive. "And maybe you'll be looking at my yearlings over in the Long Pond pastures, in the next day or so." "Rose's spells work as well as ever," she said stoutly. The last beans had got big and coarse on the vines; the cabbages were thriving. Three hens came clucking and pecking around the dusty dooryard, a red, a brown, a white; a grey hen was setting her clutch in the henhouse. There were no chicks, and no sign of the cock, the King, Heleth had called him. The king is dead, Ogion thought. Maybe a chick is hatching even now to take his place. He thought he caught a whiff of fox from the little orchard behind the house. body. He felt a mild regret. It was only fair that he should die here with the man he had killed. Roke, unsealed and entered the cave, defeated the Dark Woman, and took her place. Once there in the Grove she had no thought of earning, or deserving, or even of learning. To be there was enough, was all. "I'm going back to where I am," Kurremkarmerruk said abruptly. "I don't like leaving myself about. He saw her now more clearly than he had seen her in the tower. That had always been his word for evil doings, spells for gain, curses, black magic: "sticky. the winding stairs, out of the tower, past the barracks, away from the mines. They walked through. Dulse paused. "He was my master. Would have been my friend, perhaps, if I'd stayed on Roke. Have wizards friends? No more than they have wives, or sons, some would say.... Once he said to me that in our trade it's a lucky man who finds someone to talk to. Keep that in mind. If you're lucky, one day you'll have to open your mouth." He ran down from the straggle of huts to the quick, noisy stream he had heard singing through his sleep all his nights in Woodedge. He prayed to it. "Take me and save me," he asked it. He made the spell the old Changer had taught him long ago, and said the word of transformation. Then no man knelt by the loud-running water, but an otter slipped into it and was gone. Many came there both small and great, whisper. Diamond-The bones of the earth- "You take care," the witch said, grim. "Everything's perilous, right enough, and meddling with wizards most of all." "Ged," he said. He bowed his head. After a while he looked up and asked, "Will you take my name. The next day she said, "I'm going to sit under the trees." Not sure what was expected of him, he followed her at a distance till they came to the inmost part of the Grove where all the trees were of the same kind, nameless yet each with its own name. When she sat down on the soft leaf mold between the roots of a big old tree, he found himself a place not far away to sit; and as she watched and listened and was still, he watched and listened and was still. So they did for several days. Then one morning, in rebellious mood, he stayed by the stream while Ember walked into the Grove. She did not look back. window, its door was cross-grained oak barred with iron, and spells had been laid on that door. dominion for a generation or longer. Wishing to end the line of the Kargish kings but unwilling to risk sacrilege by shedding royal blood, the Godking ordered these children to be stranded on a desert island. Among her clothes and toys the princess Anthil had the half of the broken Ring brought by Erreth-Akbe, which had descended to her from Thoreg's daughter. As an old woman she gave this to the young wizard Ged, shipwrecked on her island. Later, with the help of the high priestess of the Tombs of Atuan, Arha-Tenar, Ged was able to rejoin the broken halves of the Ring and so remake the Rune of Peace. He and Tenar brought the healed Ring to Havnor, to await the heir of Morred and Serriadh, King Lebannen. Time passed as always in the Grove, not passing at all it seemed, yet gone, the day gone quietly. "I am hungry now," said the mage.
